the public since the opening of the fourround game in this city.

Downing has arranged six bouts for the next weekly show of the club. As the best crowd-pleasers that have been boxing before the club for the past two months will be on the bill, the fans are looking forward to a night of great sport.

For a headliner bout. Manager Downing has signed Harry Shaeffer and Mike Malone. These two boys gave the fans a fast and furious six-round bout at the Auditorium as a preliminary to the Galiant-Hogan go. Shaeffer was awarded the decision a few seconds before the six rounds were up. It was one of the best bouts ever seen here. Malone had been sparring partner for Gallant, and as he had been through a hard grind for the ten preceding days, he says he was stale and in no condition to do himself justice. He has asked for a chance

Another bout which Downing has arranged and which looks like a headliner will be between Gien Gutke, ex-amateur champion of the Rocky Mountain district, and "Battling" Travis. These two boys are the cream of the featherweight division, and, from their past performances, should give the fans a treat. Neither, has been boxing recently, as Travis was troubled with an infection of the eye until about a week ago, and Gutke has been suffering from a lame arm. Now they are both in condition, and, as they are working out daily, they will no doubt put up a very interesting contest.

"Mack" McAllister, who has made such a hit with the fans by his aggressiveness and willingness to mix matters with anyone he boxes, will meet Billy Furnis of Ogden, whom the Junction City fans are touting as a comer. This will be the first bout for Furnis in this city and the fans will watch his debut with considerable interest.

VICE COMMISSION IDEA OF SHEARMAN

On reports made by him, the chief of police has based his recommendations for granting or refusing rooming house licenses.

The action in reference to the Brunswick license was taken as a result of disclosures made Wednesday by Henry W. Lawrence, finance commissioner, who told the commission that he had employed a private detective to investigate the Brunswick and that the detective had reported the place to be disorderly. If a private investigation disclosed this condition, the finance commissioner wanted to know why the police department could not learn the same facts.

Letter From the Chief

Letter From the Chief.

Letter From the Chief.

A letter was received from the chief of police yesterday morning asking that the question of Mae Donnely's license be opened and suggesting that a public hearing be had before the commission to determine whether the license should be granted or revoked.

Acting on this letter, Mayor Park entered a motion rescinding the action by which the license was granted and calling for the public hearing. Taking the stand that the police department's function was to gather evidence and information for the commission, Henry W. Lawrence moved an amendment to the mayor's motion rescinding the action and referring the matter back to the chief of police. This amendment carried by unanimous vote. The finance commissioner said that by holding a public hearing the commission would be taking on its own shoulders the responsibility that belonged to the police department.

the evidence. I could get it," said Shearman.

"I invite you to do so," the mayor replied.

"I would if the matter were in my department." Shearman answered. "By that I mean no personal reflection on you, but if it were in my department I certainly would get the evidence."

"Well, will you go out and get it?" asked the mayor.

"I certainly do not propose to," said Shearman. "It is not the business of the city commission to go out looking for evidence. That is what the chief of police and his men are hired and paid for."

initiated was proof in itself that some wrongdoing was going on in the place. Commissioner Lawrence suggested that plainclothes men be posted around the place to watch the girls, who go in each night.

"The place is not open to the general public, as our investigations have shown," he said. "A rooming house should be open to the public and if it is not then it has no right to a license." The city attorney was called in to tell whether or not a license could be rescinded after it had been granted without a hearing or formal evidence from the police department. He advised that this could be done, inasmuch as the city recorder had not yet issued the license.

Grant Writes Letter.

Following is the letter from the chief of police which started the discussion: I have the honor to state that I learn from the morning papers that members of your honorable body are in possession of information which m possession of information which would justify you in refusing a license to Mae Donnely at 1593 Main street. Had I known of a single witness who would follow the case into the district court with evidence that this applicant was not obeying the law I would have protested her application. law I would have protested her ap-plication.

Almost every protest I have made

Almost every protest I have made on licenses which have been refused has been carried into the district court. It is absolutely necessary for me to have something besides rumor to base my objections on, lest unnecessary expense and trouble are incurred.

I have tried for more than a year to ascertain whether or not this particular place were legally conducted. I have not been able to talk with anyone, either officer or citizen, who could give me facts upon which to base a case against her.

Proof Is Lacking.

Frankly, I have not a single witness, nor any evidence which the court would consider, to prove that Mae Donnely is running an immoreal house. Neither rumors nor personal suspicions would suffice and my consuspicions would suffice and my con-tingent fund is not sufficient to per-mit me to employ outside detectives for rooming houses as fast as people become acquainted with the men who make the inspections.

If the commission has any evidence I would be glad to take action upon the same and would respectfully sug-gest that the matter be reopened and that Mac Donnely be notified to ap-pear before the commission to show that Mae Donnely be notified to appear before the commission to show cause why her license should not be revoked or refused as the case may be. This has been done in similar cases where this department obtained the evidence and our officers had acted as witnesses before your honorable body, as well as in the courts later. Any assistance I or any member of the department can give will be all the more cheerfully rendered, because we have tried very hard to get a case against this applicant. because we have tried very hard to get a case against this applicant but without success. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

County Investigates. Members of the commission were informed yesterday that a special investigation of the Brunswick had been made by two officers of the county under the direction of the county attorney. The chief of police was furnished with the names of these men and during the day was in conference with one of them relative to what had been discovered at the Brunswick.

For obvious reasons, the names of th For obvious reasons, the names of the investigators from the county attorney's office are being withheld, but it was announced on good authority that they are willing to furnish the chief with ample evidence on which to base a refusal of license to the Brunswick.

I. E. Willey, county attorney, said yesterday afternoon that the investigation had been conducted through his office as a part of a general investigation to discover how the liquor law is being enforced in the city.

These men discovered, according to the county attorney, that beer was being sold unlawfully at the Brunswick and that women of the underworld congregated there.

Grant on Resignation. Chief of Police B. F. Grant, in referring to the resignation of Detective Hugh L.

to the resignation of Detective Hugh L. Glenn, said yesterday:

So his enemies got him, did they? When Glenn came on the force and I gave him the rooming house detail he said to me that they would "get" him. I told Glenn that a new order was in effect and that a man would not be discharged for doing his duty, but that he would be discharged for failing to do his duty. Glenn has done his duty. He has stuck on the trail of the rooming houses and has struck terror to the hearts of the prostitutes and macquereaux, and they knew that they could not prosper here so long as he was on the force.

That is why they have got him. If they had gone after the head of a ranking officer it could easily he understood, but when they go after a man in the lowest rank of the service, I cannot understand it, save that it was because he did his duty.

Glenn was one of the men who Glenn, said yesterday:

He kept a complete record of all the rooming houses in the city and I knew all the time just where they stood. Count for Man-

Detective Glenn talked freely of his work in the department when asked for a statement concerning his resignation and the action of the board of commissioners. He said:

and the action of the board of commissioners. He said:

I have done my best while a member of the force. When I took the place and was put in charge of the rooming house inspection I realized just what must eventually happen. I spoke to the chief about it at the time, and let me add that I have only the most friendly feeling toward the chief. I met him for the first time a few days before he was appointed as chief and at that time made application for a position.

I have made no plans for the future beyond finally determining that I shall be a candidate for justice of the peace this fail. I am a Socialist and I may get the indorsement of my party. If I do not, I shall run independently. And let me say that I feel that the element opposed to me now and in the past is the element that is against the law. I expect that this same element will fight me in a political race.

It is an unfortunate thing that the plan of making a "goat" of an officer should be followed in this city. It seems that when an officer does his duty—obeys the orders he receives from his superiors (and my every action has only been in accord with what I was ordered to do)—that the officer should not have to stand the brunt of the opposition.
